WRIGHT STATE UNIVERSITY

Dayton Children's and Wright State University have a longstanding partnership, including our top-notch pediatric residency program.

- Wright State is the critical supplier of trained clinicians to care for the children living in our region.
- Dayton Children's is the critical pediatric provider in the region.

Together with our shared mission, we will continue to strengthen the health care workforce in the region while advancing the health of the children in the Miami Valley region.

Many children in our community are not thriving

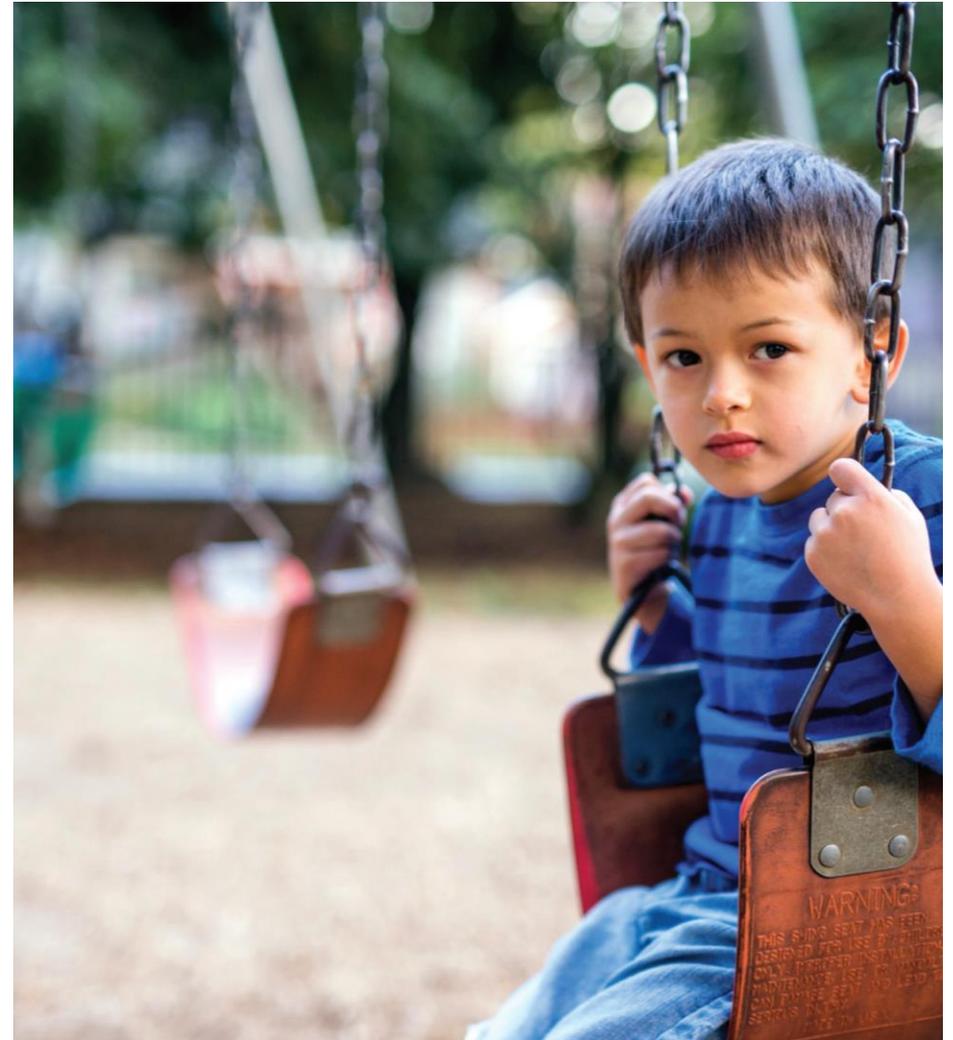

Ohio consistently ranks in the bottom half of states on child health and wellbeing.

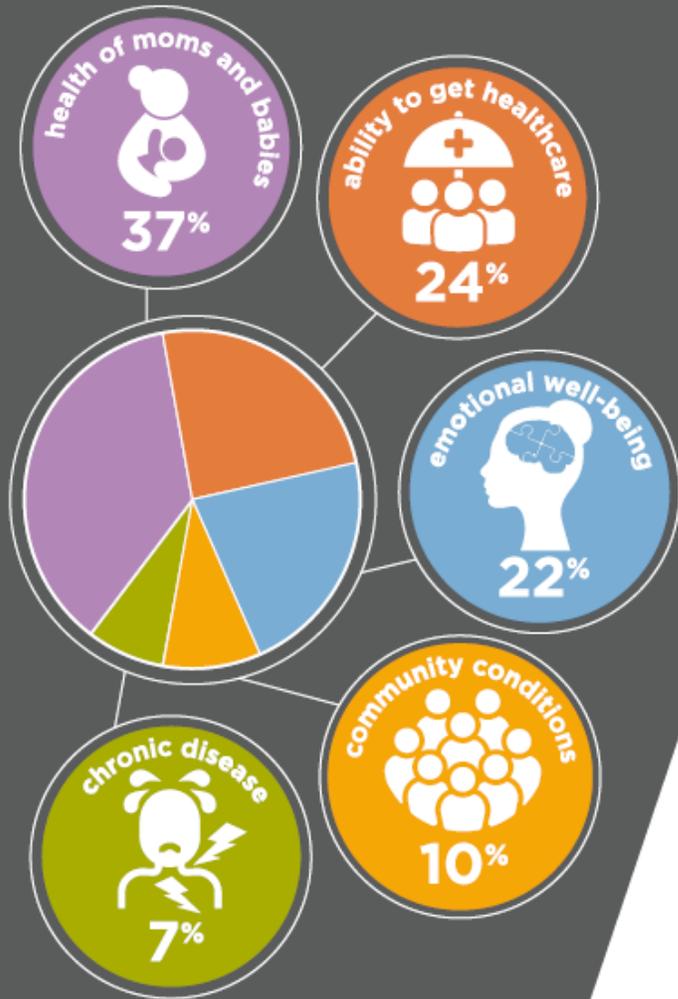

Infant mortality rates are much higher in our community compared to the state.

An increasing number of children in our community are facing behavioral health challenges.

top concerns ranked in order

three issues

1 children's mental health

Percent of 7-12th graders in Western Ohio who saw a health care provider for a mental health problem in the past year

2 chronic disease

Percent of households that are food insecure in Montgomery County

3 maternal and infant health

Percent of infants breastfed for 3 months

the resources our community says they need

Working together to strengthen the Miami Valley region

Together, Dayton Children's Hospital and Wright State University can work to accomplish:

- Increasing the number of pediatricians across our region
 - Building additional workforce training capacity
 - Training and retaining critical providers within our region
 - Upskilling in-career clinicians
 - Expanding research focused on children's health priorities of the region, including maternal health and infant mortality, chronic disease and behavioral health
 - Support expansion of services in underserved and high poverty areas with focus on West Dayton and other primary care deserts
